

Time Warner Cable came out to install RoadRunner high speed internet access. They ended drilling holes along the whole back side of our home without permission and then left exposed cable line for over 4 months. We repeated called them to bury the line and to fix the damage to our home. After months and months of calling (with no response to our request) we finally discontinued service. We still have damage to our home and still have a large amount of exposed cable line in our yard.
